As a numerical example, let us suppose that the wave-length is ten times the interval $a + b$. Then, even if one-tenth only of the area of the grating be occupied by the metal strips, the coefficients of reflection and transmission are, for electrical vibrations parallel to the lengths, $1=879$, $I=121$. The same numbers in reverse order give the coefficients of reflection and transmission for electrical vibrations transverse to the length, when the apertures occupy only one-tenth of the area; viz., $7=121$, $J=879$. The coefficient of reflection in the one case, and of transmission in the other, increases rapidly with the wave-length. In the immediate neighbourhood of the grating the lines $y = \text{const}$, coincide with the curves $f = \text{const}$, of Fig. 1. These give the directions...
