Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Boston Revival, 1842: A Brief History of the Evangelical Churches of Boston, Together With a More Particular Account of the Revival of 1842 It Was a remark of President Edwards, that nothing tended more to promote the work of grace among his people at Northampton, than to tell them what God was doing in other places. If oral narratives produced this effect, then may we expect that written narratives will accomplish the same purpose. With a desire to honor God, and advance the interests of his kingdom, Edwards wrote and published a work entitled Surprising Conversions at Northampton. Mr. Whitefield, before he came to this country, read this narrative, and was deeply interested in it. This induced him to visit Edwards, that he might see and converse with the man by whom God had wrought such wonders. If Edwards judged it expedient in his day, to collect and publish facts concerning the revival at Northampton, We shall not be thought to undertake a needless work, if we shall attempt to gather up the history of the revival that took place in this city during the last winter and spring. It will be seen by the facts recorded in this little volume, that God does not confine his Spirit to one denomination, or to one mode of worship. Wherever the doctrines of the Cross are preached, accompanied with prayer, they are the power of God and the wisdom of God unto salvation. I hope that one effect of gathering the facts respecting the late revival in this city, will be to break down sectarian bigotry, and lead God s people to feel towards each other as...
